It had been depied. day morning at nine o'clock, and is expected here more than once we believe, that the treaty ment will go under canvas at Kowloon until the conferring exclusive rights on French subjects, and a telegram from Paris, published with the French mail news, again denies Treaty given by the Singapore paper be corhas indeed stolen a march upon the British Indian Government. For the sake of reference we reproduce it bere:-

1.—That an exclusive concession is to be made to the French Government to construct railways in Up rest at the rate of 7} per cent, on the amount expended in the construction of a railway from Mandalay to the Burmese frontier near Toul, 20.

3.—That the French Government—are to have the control of the Customs receipts on the Irrawaddy River as security for the interest due on the capital expended on railway construction. The balance, after deducting the amount of such interest, to be paid over to the Burmese Government by the French.
4.—That a Bank with a capital of Re. 250,00,000 be established, one-hulf share to be for the French, andthe other half for the Barmese Government. control the working of the Ruby Mines.

5.—That as security for the banking capital to be advanced by the French, the latter are to have control of the Customs derived from the ten trade, and to It will be seen, by the most cursory glance! at this document, that the control of the trade of the country would be handed over to the French under its conditions, while it paves the way for future connection with Tonquin and affords abundant excuse for Government. Such a treaty is wholly unwarmerce points out, seeing that there are no French interests in Burmah, and it is a clear case of peaching on British preserves. It is true, unfortunately, that up to date the British Government has-seted, a- part akin to that of the dog of the manger in Upper Burmah, refusing to rescue it from anarchy yet unwilling to see another power step in and establish a footing there which would render intervention difficult in the future. The of the aborigines with characters made of Chinese reached London, visi Brindisi, on the 7th quite on top of her, and it was evident value of the trade of British Burmah has increased from £5,319,502 in 1874 to much larger dimensions if the obstructive policy of King Thereaw—who is a mononot only constitute a check upon the development of trade with Upper Burmah, but prove a barrier to all commercial communication with the Shan States and Western activity "pursued by the Administration of Lord Ripon, which, while professing to be actuated by the most philanthropic and benevolent feelings for the natives of India, horrible and inhuman massacres to be perpetratedat Mandalay by the sangainary monand startling dénoument of M. Haas's misabout. We have faith in the discretion of Lord bassador, and it is difficult to see how this governed his unhappy country. Had the and deposed the King, they might either with a Resident to control its afficies, or they might quietly have annexed the whole country. A couple of regiments would have amply sufficed to upset King l'HEREAW's supremacy, which is founded only on terror, and the abolition of which would be regarded as a merciful deliverance by his oppressed may be difficult to find, unless they fall back upon his numerous breaches of treaty WATSON & Co.'s and the serious injury to British trade and interests which must result from his intrigues with France. If the Penang Gazette information is to be relied upon, some action is imminent, but what form it will take we can only conjecture. It seems the Chief Commissioner at Rangoon, in reply to the representations of the Chamber of Commerce, gave a general concurrence with the views of the Chamber, and it is evident that he appreciates the gravity of the situation and believes that the treaty has been concluded. We trust, however, that the contradiction from Paris may prove bond fide If this should be the case the possible danger has been indicated and the Indian Government will do well to lay the lesson to heart, so that they may not run the risk of having a mine sprung upon them in the ADELAIDE, 4th September. The following telegram, dated September 2nd, was received by the Minister of Education from the Government Resident in the Northern Territory on Thursday :-- "Captain Carrington reports his safe arrival at Castlereagh Bay. After coast, he reached Van Diemen's Gulf to explore the Alligator River. The Goyder River is naabout eight miles beyond that for small boats. The country along the banks of the river consists chiefly of dense forest and jungle, the alluvial flats apparently being flooded in the wet season. No such river as the Hutchinson exists. This is another mouth of the Goyder; and the iver marked in the chart as running parallel to the Goyder, does not exist. The Blyth River, 10 miles from its mouth, divides into two branches, and the western branch is probably the River Cadell described by Mr. Lindsay. On the Goyder. Captain Carrington was attacked by one of three natives who had been on board the steamer, and who had been supplied with tobacco and food. One spear grazed Captain Carrington's arm, but without inflicting more than a skin wound. In Hutchison's Inlet the launch was surrounded by the natives, but no casualty occurred. A thorough examination is now being made of the Alligator River."
